Italian Cheese Seminar To Be Sponsored By Dairyland Foods

Waukesha, Wis. — Dairyland Food Laboratories, Inc., will present a series of seminars in four Wisconsin cities for members of the state's Italian cheese industry, it has been announced by Merle G. Farnham, DFL president.

The meetings will be held at Fond du Lac on September 18, Green Bay on September 19, Platteville on September 25, and Eau Claire on September 26. Authorities in the fields of cheese research, production, packaging, and marketing will speak.

"These seminars bring together manufacturers with research and technical experts for discussions of activities of mutual interest in the cheese industry," Farnham said.

Farnham will talk on "Rennet World Wide: A Rome Report," at the meetings. Other speakers and their subjects will be:

"Pink Ring Defect can be Prevented" by Dr. Norman P. Olson, department of food science and industries, University of Wisconsin-Madison. "What's New In Cheese Packaging" by Donald P. Garry, packaging specialist with Milprint, Inc., Milwaukee.

"The Coming Revolution in Milk-Clotting Enzymes", "Imports: Effect on the Domestic Cheese Industry" by Robert F. Anderson, executive secretary, National Cheese Institute, Chicago.

Farnham said DFL, which pioneered in providing research information for the cheese industry, "is pleased to contribute to the continuing technological research and knowledge of the Italian cheese industry, and to assist Wisconsin in maintaining its position as the No. 1 state in the production of Italian cheese."
